Dear Ms. Beckhardt:

The American Chronic Pain Association is requesting a corporate contribution to support a Breakthrough pain educational project for $33,800. Below I've sketched out some ideas for an early fall campaign to raise awareness about this significant issue.

Because the time is short, the program we are proposing is modest. But we believe that it will capitalize on the attention generated by the September Pain Awareness Month activities.

Background

For more than a quarter century, the ACPA has worked to provide direct education in pain management skills and peer support to people living with chronic pain. Our goal has always been to change the face of pain—to help those with pain and the public at large understand that pain can affect anyone and that, with appropriate treatment, it is possible to live a good quality of life with pain.

Reducing the crippling fear that can accompany pain is an important element of changing how we think about this condition. Because breakthrough pain is a key driver of fear and stands in the way of many, we propose addressing BTP in a campaign this September.

Addressing Breakthrough Pain

The goal of our activities will be to allay fear and enhance coping skills by providing information about pain flares and how to better manage them to those who experience them.

Our key message will be that breakthrough pain can be managed and its impact on function and life satisfaction minimized through a combination of medications and behavioral approaches. Informational elements will include:

- What is breakthrough pain;
- What causes it;

- Impact it has on quality of life;
- Techniques for managing pain flares; and
- Communicating with your doctor about them.

Tactics

We propose to employ these elements in our campaign.

- Consumer Brochure: This consumer education/resource brochure will address breakthrough pain specifically as well as conveying our key messages. It will explain what breakthrough pain is, how to identify the triggers for BTP, the use of medications to combat BTP, and other techniques individuals can use to reduce its impact. The brochure will be available directly through ACPA. We will post it on the home page our web page as a “news item” in a PDF format. The BTP pamphlet will also be included it in every letter/information pack that we send out.
- Radio Media Tour: This nationwide media initiative would partner an expert from ACPA and a medical expert to speak of the challenges of breakthrough pain, how to overcome those challenges, and the resources available to people with pain.

Timing

Time is short. We propose to begin work as soon as possible, with the goal of conducting the Radio Media Tour the fourth week of September. The brochure would be available by the end of the month to coincide with the radio media tour.

Budget

Here are projected costs for each element we have proposed.

Consumer brochure

Development and Writing: $5,000
Design and layout: $5,000
Printing: Printing of 10,000 4-color tri-folds: $3,800

Radio Media Tour:

Radio Media Tour - $20,000
Travel and miscellaneous costs: TBD

Total estimated costs: $33,800 plus travel and miscellaneous costs.

We hope this short-term project will lay a foundation for greater understanding of pain flairs among both people with pain and their health care providers. Please feel free to call me with any questions you might have. We'll look forward to talking with you about this exciting opportunity.

Yours truly,
Penney Cowan
